H APRIL 17TH, 1886.

THE Chinese Minister at Washington is said to be displeased with the portion of the President's late message which recommends an appropriation to reimburse the Rock Springs sufferers in the form of a gift. Commenting on this statement the San Francisco Call savs:-

The Chinese Minister does not see much generality

in making a present in place of paying a debt. In a certain sense the Chinese Minister is right. The United States is bound by law and treaty to compensate China for the acts of lawless American citizens by which Chinese residents suffer in person and aroperty, or it is not. If it is it should pay, and not conceal payment under the guise of charity; if it is not, it should give the reason why it is not. These reasons may be very briefly stated. The fundamental one is the fact that there is no reciprocity between he two countries in the matter of immigration. In all China there are a little over 600 Americans living in places designated by Chinese authorities. In the United States there are 15 ,000 Chinese, living wherover their interest dictates. On the Pacific Coast and the United States Government compensation in the Territories they are found everywhere. They do not ask local consent nor pay much heed to local prejudices. As a consequence there are a thousand exposed points in the United States to one in China. Our Government might point out the inequalities of the conditions prevailing in the two countries, and inform the Chinese Government that while American courts would be open to Chinese residents as to other residents or citizens, the Chinese must look to the courts for redress. It is preposterous to suppose that. the Government of the United States extends, to Chinese all the privileges it confers upon native witizens with the understanding that the Chinese are insured against losses which natives have to take chances with.

In the first portion of these remarks the case is clearly stated. To the reasons given in the latter portion why the Chinese are not Old Dock, Shanghai, having some repairs effectentitled to demand compensation excepted to her boilers "tion may be taken on several grounds. procity of immigration is wholly irrele- bishop of Dublin, is dead. vant. No limit is placed by China on the number of Americans who may settle in China; but the particular places at which they may settle are limited and defined. America, on the other hand, limits the number of Chinese immigrants but does not limit or define the places at which they may settle. If Americans do not come to China in larger numbers it is because the conditions are not such as to attract them; and the United States have for years past been taking action to make the conditions on that which she reached on the 9th instant, the steamer side such as shall not attract the Chinese. All this, however, has nothing to do with the question whether the citizens of the one country sustaining injury at the hands of a mob in the territory of the other has a right to demand compensation from the Governhandemanded and received on behalf of its subfects compensation from China in such cases throws the obligation on the United States jects of injury in its territory. If the Chi- Good Hope. nese are to look to the United States Courts for redress, then it is to the courts also that American citizens in China should lookanot to the Chinese courts, of course, but to the execute critorial courts provided by the was not done in the case of the Seamonn riot. The claims of the Americans who affered loss on that occasion were made through their Consul, on the Government, and they were settled by the Government. This is a precedent which clearly governs the case as against the United States in the present instance. As to the Ameri-

"Rien ne va plus!" is the cry of the croupler in the "clubs," when the bets are all made and the banker is ready to deal; and | China Sugar Refining Company, Limited—399 rien as va plus is a term well describing the general state of France just at present. Not to touch on the subject of the grave difficulties which France is encountering, the very condition of Paris is an evidence of decline. Once the gayest and brightest of cities, it has lately taken on a listless, slovenly, dispirited air, which any one will observe in an instant who may revisit it after an absence of twenty or thirty years. Many of the principal streets are frequented by chiracters who formerly would have been relegated to their native barrière; and the sort of profligacy which is now rendering the boulevard hideous by day and night is the immorality, not of prosperity, but penury. The glittering shops are losing their lustre, the fashionable restaurants are losing their fame, even the most popular theatres are fighting with failure. Paris, in a word, Paris, the soul of France, is "going off" in a manner almost painful to see. There have been, of course, many various reasons for this downward movement; but baccarat, as it is played in the French capital, has helped to bring it about.

For the credit of English law and procedure, (says the Law Times) we hope it will be a long time before another Crawford v. Dilke case comes into court. We cannot express our real opinion about everybody concerned in the judicial farce of Friday last. We may express sympathy with the Attorney-General and Sir Henry James, who had to make themselves so painfully and estentationally responsible for a client whose absence from the witness box was accounted for by a rigid adherence to the technical necessities of the case. We may also sympathise with the Judge, who went beyond the necessities of the case, and referred to the possible state of the lady's mind, whose confession affected the co-respondent. Probably there has never been a case where the weaknesses of it as against one party were so startling and so transparent, or which was so dominated by a pervading desire for one result above all others. Why the counsel who represented the co-respondent were allowed to do more than submit that there was no case. it is difficult to understand. If there was no case to answer, no excuse was needed for not calling the co-respondent. The one practical result is, that the respondent was guilty of adultery with somebody, but not with the only person implicated by her confession.

The High Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada, Sir Charles Tupper, accompanied by the Agents-General of the various Australian Colonies, waited upon Earl Granville, Secretary of State for the Colonies, at the Colonial Office recently, to point out the possible results which might follow from the recent treaty between France and Germany by the terms of which the latter power agreed not to interfere with the acquisition by the French Republic of the New Hebrides. Lord Granville states that the French Government has already been communicated with by the Foreign Office and it had replied that it was aware of the arrangement and would respect it. He had no reason whatever to apprehend that France had any design on the New Hebrides. The British Government was quite aware of the strong objection entertained by the. people of Australia to any fresh acquisition by foreign powers of territory in the South Pseific, and every effort would be made to insure their wishes being carried out. This is the first occasion that Canada has joined with the Australian Colonies in matters connected with the Pacific Ocean, the Government of the Dominion now regarding itself, since the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, as having an important interest in that ocean and the islands it contains.

A correspondent writes from Odesss in the beginning of this year:-Throughout Russia on the 6th of January of every year takes place the ceremony known as "The Blessing of the Waters," which is performed in memory of Christ's baptism in the Jordan. This year, after it had taken place at Yasnogorodkee, a village in the Government of Kieff, the officiating priest, as usual, went round to the various hamlets in the district with some of the holy water to aprinkle upon the people and their dwellings. That being done, and a prayer offered up, he presented the cross to the people for them to kiss. (The crucifix is not accepted in the Russian Church.) But the inhabitants of one of these hamlets, being Stundists (Puritans or Huguenots), protested against the aspersion, and refused to kies the cross. When the priest and his deacon returned to Yasnogorodkee and related to their fellow-villagers, who had remained at home, what had happened, a drunken saint called out.

"Let us thrash them." As usual in such cases, of the moment, the drunken leader and his folin a body to the offending hamlet, and did not. leave it till they had razed to the ground the 30 hovels composing it.

WOMAN'S SUFFERINGS AND GRATITUDE.

A VOICE FROM AUSTRIA. Near the village of Zillingdorl in Lower Austria lives Maria Hass, an intelligent and that was enough to inflame all who heard it. industrious woman, whose story of physical And as the brutal proposition suited the humour suffering and final relief, as related by hercelf, is ALIFORNIAN FLOUR. THE Company's Steamship of interest to English women. "I was employed," 📳 lowers armed themselves with cudgels, marched she says, "in the work of a large farmhouse. Overwork brought on sick headsone, followed by a deathly fainting and sickness of the stomach, until I was unable to retain either food or drink. I was compelled to take to my bed for several weeks. Getting a little better from rest and quiet, I sought to do some work, but was soon taken with a pain in my side, which in a little while seemed to spread over my whole body, and throbbed in my every limb. This was followed by a cough and shortness of breath, until finally I could not sew, and I took to my bed for the CLARETS, CHAMPAGNE. by a cough and shortness of breath, until finally second, and, as I thought, for the last time. My HOCKS, BURGUNDY. friends told me that my time had nearly come, ard that I could not live longer than when the MACHINERY, LAWN MOWERS. trees-put-on-their green once more. Then I SCALES, BICYCLES. happened to get one of the Seigel pamphlets. I PAINTS, OILS, VARNISH.

read it, and my dear mother bought me a bottle Apply to of Seigel's Syrup, which I took exactly accoording to directions, and I had not taken the whole of it before I felt a great change for the better. My last illness began June 3rd, 1882, and continued to August 9th, when I began to take the Syrup. - Very soon-I-could do a little work. The cough left me, and I was no more troubled in breathing. Now I am perfectly cured. And oh, how happy I am! I cannot express gratitude enough for Seigel's Sycup. Now I must tell you that the doctors in our district distributed handbills cautioning people against the medicine, telling them it would do them no good, Seigel pamphlets; but now, wherever one is to be found, it is kept like a relic. The few preserved are borrowed to read, and I have lent mine for six miles around our district. People have come eighteen miles to get me to buy the u chicine for them, knowing that it cured me, and to be sure to get the right kind. I know a woman who was looking like death, and who told them there was no help for her, that she had consulted several dectors but none could help her. I told her of Seigel's Syrup, and wrote the name down for her that she might make no mistake. She took my advice and the Syrup, and now she is in perfect health, and the people around us are amazed. The medicine has made such progress in our neighbourhood that people say they don't want the doctor any more but they take the Syrup. Sufferers from gout who were confined to their bed and could hardly move a finger, have been cured by it. There is a girl in our district who caught a cold by going through some water, and was in bed five years with costiveness and rheumatic pains, and had to have an attendant to watch by her. There was not a doctor in the surreguling districts to whom her mother had not applied to relieve her child but every one crossed themselves and said they could not help her. Whenever the little bell rang which is rung in our place when somebody is dead, we thought surely it was for her, but Seigel's Syrup and Pills saved her life, and now she is as healthy as anybody, goes to church, and can work even in the fields. Everybody was astonished when they saw her out, knowing how many years she had been in bed. To-day she adds her gratitude to mine for God's mercies and
